

ABSTRACT

The present invention relates to a therapeutic method comprising administering anti-IGF-IR antibodies, particularly human anti-IGF-IR antibodies to a subject for the treatment of certain disorders preferably in conjunction with administration of another therapeutic agent. The invention further relates to pharmaceutical compositions comprising these antibodies and methods of using the antibodies and compositions thereof for treatment.

5